Canadian Technology Accreditation Criteria (CTAC) Stakeholder Review Announcement

In 2017, the Standards Council of Technology Accreditation Canada (TAC) formed a Standards Development Steering Committee to review a number of key issues related to the Canadian Technology Accreditation Criteria (CTAC), the collection of learning outcomes used by stakeholders in the profession. With the participation of the Canadian Council of Technicians and Technologists, the Steering Committee comprised of educators and certified professionals from across the country.

TAC is pleased to announce a revised collection of the CTAC, along with a revised format, is now available for public comment. The public review period will be open from February 18 until April 18, 2020. All comments received will be responded to by the Standards Development Steering Committee.
